Initiatives

California Ballot Propositions and Initiatives

1-1-1920

Prohibition Of Vivisection

Follow this and additional works at: http://repository.uchastings.edu/ca_ballot_inits

Recommended Citation

http://repository.uchastings.edu/ca_ballot_inits/37

This Initiative is brought to you for free and open access by the California Ballot Propositions and Initiatives at UC Hastings Scholarship Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in Initiatives by an authorized administrator of UC Hastings Scholarship Repository. For more information, please contact marcusc@uchastings.edu.
PROHIBITING COMPULSORY VACCINATION. Initiative measure adding Section 15 to Article IX of the Constitution. Declares that no form of vaccination, inoculation or other medication shall hereafter be made a condition for admission to or attendance in any public school, college, university or other educational institution in this state, or for the employment of any person in or on any public property or public school, college, university or other educational institution. The people of the State of California do enact as follows: Article I. No form of vaccination, inoculation or other medication shall hereafter be made a condition for admission to or attendance in any public school, college, university or other educational institution in this state, or for the employment of any person in or on any public property or public school, college, university or other educational institution. The provisions of this section shall not be controlling or limited by any other provision of this constitution.

ARGUMENT IN FAVOR OF PROHIBITING COMPULSORY VACCINATION.

The records of the State board of health disclose that more than eighty per cent of the population of the State of California, children and adults, have been protected against the threat of smallpox and the other diseases of childhood by the voluntary and compulsory inoculation and vaccination. The health of the State has thereby been maintained. The present law has been enforced as a matter of public policy and has been found to be necessary for the protection of the public health. The present law has been enforced as a matter of public policy and has been found to be necessary for the protection of the public health.

Sufficient qualified electors of the State of California present to the secretary of state this petition signed in accordance with law, that a proposed measure, as hereinafter set forth, be submitted to the people at the next ensuing general election. The petitioners shall sign as follows:

PROPOSED AMENDMENT.
The full text of the proposed amendment is:

The people of the State of California do enact as follows: Article I. No form of vaccination, inoculation or other medication shall hereafter be made a condition for admission to or attendance in any public school, college, university or other educational institution in this state, or for the employment of any person in or on any public property or public school, college, university or other educational institution. The provisions of this section shall not be controlling or limited by any other provision of this constitution.

ARGUMENT IN FAVOR OF PROHIBITING COMPULSORY VACCINATION.

The records of the State board of health disclose that more than eighty per cent of the population of the State of California, children and adults, have been protected against the threat of smallpox and the other diseases of childhood by the voluntary and compulsory inoculation and vaccination. The health of the State has thereby been maintained. The present law has been enforced as a matter of public policy and has been found to be necessary for the protection of the public health. The present law has been enforced as a matter of public policy and has been found to be necessary for the protection of the public health.

Sufficient qualified electors of the State of California present to the secretary of state this petition signed in accordance with law, that a proposed measure, as hereinafter set forth, be submitted to the people at the next ensuing general election. The petitioners shall sign as follows:

PROPOSED AMENDMENT.
The full text of the proposed amendment is:

The people of the State of California do enact as follows: Article I. No form of vaccination, inoculation or other medication shall hereafter be made a condition for admission to or attendance in any public school, college, university or other educational institution in this state, or for the employment of any person in or on any public property or public school, college, university or other educational institution. The provisions of this section shall not be controlling or limited by any other provision of this constitution.

ARGUMENT IN FAVOR OF PROHIBITING COMPULSORY VACCINATION.

The records of the State board of health disclose that more than eighty per cent of the population of the State of California, children and adults, have been protected against the threat of smallpox and the other diseases of childhood by the voluntary and compulsory inoculation and vaccination. The health of the State has thereby been maintained. The present law has been enforced as a matter of public policy and has been found to be necessary for the protection of the public health. The present law has been enforced as a matter of public policy and has been found to be necessary for the protection of the public health.

Sufficient qualified electors of the State of California present to the secretary of state this petition signed in accordance with law, that a proposed measure, as hereinafter set forth, be submitted to the people at the next ensuing general election. The petitioners shall sign as follows:

PROPOSED AMENDMENT.
The full text of the proposed amendment is:

The people of the State of California do enact as follows: Article I. No form of vaccination, inoculation or other medication shall hereafter be made a condition for admission to or attendance in any public school, college, university or other educational institution in this state, or for the employment of any person in or on any public property or public school, college, university or other educational institution. The provisions of this section shall not be controlling or limited by any other provision of this constitution.

ARGUMENT IN FAVOR OF PROHIBITING COMPULSORY VACCINATION.

The records of the State board of health disclose that more than eighty per cent of the population of the State of California, children and adults, have been protected against the threat of smallpox and the other diseases of childhood by the voluntary and compulsory inoculation and vaccination. The health of the State has thereby been maintained. The present law has been enforced as a matter of public policy and has been found to be necessary for the protection of the public health. The present law has been enforced as a matter of public policy and has been found to be necessary for the protection of the public health.

Sufficient qualified electors of the State of California present to the secretary of state this petition signed in accordance with law, that a proposed measure, as hereinafter set forth, be submitted to the people at the next ensuing general election. The petitioners shall sign as follows:

PROPOSED AMENDMENT.
The full text of the proposed amendment is:

The people of the State of California do enact as follows: Article I. No form of vaccination, inoculation or other medication shall hereafter be made a condition for admission to or attendance in any public school, college, university or other educational institution in this state, or for the employment of any person in or on any public property or public school, college, university or other educational institution. The provisions of this section shall not be controlling or limited by any other provision of this constitution.

ARGUMENT IN FAVOR OF PROHIBITING COMPULSORY VACCINATION.

The records of the State board of health disclose that more than eighty per cent of the population of the State of California, children and adults, have been protected against the threat of smallpox and the other diseases of childhood by the voluntary and compulsory inoculation and vaccination. The health of the State has thereby been maintained. The present law has been enforced as a matter of public policy and has been found to be necessary for the protection of the public health. The present law has been enforced as a matter of public policy and has been found to be necessary for the protection of the public health.