Foreword

The Honorable Brad R. Hill
Presiding Justice, California Court of Appeal – Fifth District

In this third year of publication, The Judges' Book yet again does an extraordinary job of providing insights into a fascinating array of cutting-edge legal issues. It does so in an easy-to-read fashion that captures the essence of new and evolving areas of our legal landscape.

Take a moment to peruse the Table of Contents and you will see that this is not another abstract collection of legal discourse with little or no practical use.

Rather, it is full of interesting and diverse analyses of critical areas of today's law. The goal of this collection has never been to provide an exhaustive review of the law but instead to set forth discrete analysis of legal concepts of relevance or interest to the bench. It does so in short chapters that can be read in a few minutes, whenever the issue discussed becomes of interest. Judges are facing more and more novel areas of the law and, in this technological age, change is coming at lightning speed.

Whether your interests lie in Constitutional Law, Criminal Law, Immunization Law, Technology Law, or in a number of other areas, there is something here for you that was created by some of the best legal minds in the country.

Any series of articles that challenge us to think about new concepts, or new ways of approaching established areas of the law, is a welcome addition to anyone's bookshelf. For judges, this collection is invaluable. We all need to continually challenge the way we think, as well as the way we view the law and the world. The Judges' Book does just that and I look forward to reading many more editions over the coming years.
