

Hastings Environmental Law Journal

Volume 7
Number 1 Fall 2000

Article 1

1-1-2000

Dragon's Lair

Melanie Anbarci

Follow this and additional works at: https://repository.uchastings.edu/hastings_environmental_law_journal

Part of the Environmental Law Commons

Recommended Citation

Melanie Anbarci, Dragon's Lair, 7 Hastings West Northwest J. of Env'tl. L. & Pol'y 1 (2001)
Available at: https://repository.uchastings.edu/hastings_environmental_law_journal/vol7/iss1/1

This Photography is brought to you for free and open access by the Law Journals at UC Hastings Scholarship Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in Hastings Environmental Law Journal by an authorized editor of UC Hastings Scholarship Repository. For more information, please contact wangangela@uchastings.edu.

Na Pali Coast, Kauai

The seashore is a native place for the lives and minds of all living things and one of the natural environments that is essential to the livelihood and culture of human beings as well as other creatures that base their lives on the seashore environment . . . Once we are deprived of this valuable natural inheritance by destruction or pollution, it cannot be created by human hands.

Irihamakan (the right of the common shore),
Proclaimed in Japan, May 1976